

Club Level

It's no longer insider-y enough to be a member of the invite-only online sample-sale service Gilt Groupe—now the company has quietly launched Gilt Noir, a membership level for the top 0.1 percent of its customers. Celerie Kemble, Marjorie Gubelmann, Gwyneth Paltrow and Google vice president Marissa Mayer were among the 2,000 charter Noir invitees chosen by a vetting team, headed by Gilt founders Alexis Maybank and Alexandra Wilkis Wilson, that considered only shoppers who spent at least $10,000 last year through Gilt Groupe. In addition to previewing all sales 15 minutes before they go live to the hoi polloi, Noir members will have access to special events, such as free wine tastings at Christie's, cooking classes with Waverly Inn chef John DeLucie and training sessions with the U.S. ski team in New Zealand.

👉 Gwyneth Paltrow, Gilt Noir charter member